KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Norway People Know How to Save It

Many Norway people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Norway citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. G. D. Frost, 6 Tucker St., says: "At the time I used Doan's Kidney Pills they helped me wonderfully and I take pleasure in recommending them. My back gave me trouble. There seemed to be a deep seated pain across the center of my back. My kidneys didn't act regularly and in other ways showed signs of disorder. As Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with good results, I thought I would try them and sent to Noyes' Drug Store and got a box. After using them, the trouble left me entirely."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Frost had. Foster-McBarn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

SUFFERED SEVEN LONG YEARS

Finally Relieved by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ravenswood, W. Va.—"For seven long years I suffered from a female trouble and inflammation so that I was not able to do my housework. I consulted several doctors but none seemed to give me relief. I read in a paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I decided to try it, and before the first bottle was gone I found great relief so I continued using it until I had taken eight bottles. Now I am very well and can do my own housework. I can gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine to suffering women."—Mrs. BERTHA LIERING, R. F. D., Ravenswood, W. Va.

The ordinary day of most housewives is a ceaseless treadmill of washing, cooking, cleaning, mending, sweeping, dusting and caring for little ones. How much harder the tasks when some derangement of the system causes headaches, backaches, bearing-down pains and nervousness. Every such woman should profit by Mrs. Liering's experience. Remember this, for over forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been restoring health.

On Sunday, Oct. 30 at 2 p. m., at the Baptist Church the pastor, Rev. Irving Kemp, will have a Harvest Sermon with special music. The church will be appropriately decorated.

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Greenleaf attended the funeral services of their sister, Mrs. Cushman, Friday, at Norway.

Mr. and Mrs. Vivian Townsend have bought a place in Lewiston, which they plan to move into in the Spring. For the winter they have employment in or near Portland. Their goods were moved there this week by William Boyd and William Greenleaf with an auto truck.

Mrs. Lizzie Lamb was taken sick, Monday, Oct. 17.

Mrs. Lucy Huff of Portland has been visiting her cousin, Nellie Frost and husband Frank, also calling on old friends, went to Poland Corner, Wednesday, to see her nephew, Fred Mayberry and wife.

Edwin Morey, who has been working for James Thomes in Harrison the past year, is stopping now with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Frost.

Victor Lord, who has been in Bingham the past month, has returned home. A number of people have sold their cider apples and are hauling them to Oxford station.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus M. Barton of South Poland are visiting relatives in East Otisfield, Casco and Raymond. Mr. Barton works for the Rickers at Poland.

Peter Wood is in poor health. Edward Loring and sister Harriet and friend, Annie Warren, went Friday to Mechanic Falls to see George Jordan and family and his mother, Mrs. Ada Jordan. They used to live here a number of years ago.

A family from Mechanic Falls has moved onto the Dr. Farris place on Scribner Hill, and are going to cut Christmas trees.

There will be a social card party at the Gore Grange hall, Thursday night, Oct. 27. Finch will also be enjoyed.

GAMBLING AT FAIRS

From Maine Farmer, by Dr. G. M. Twitchell
Years ago, when, secretary of the state fair, a party from one of our cities came to see me and made the offer of twenty-five hundred dollars if the officers would allow him one space under the grand stand and keep away during the fair, he to provide the police supervision. When I asked him if the police were not there to enforce the law, he said: "Oh, we will fix them all right if you will only give us the space."

The answer of Col. Gerard, then president was characteristic of the man; "While we need the money, it makes no difference whether it is twenty-five hundred or twenty-five thousand they cannot have the space."

The following winter the sporting fraternity went up to the legislature asking for an amendment to the law forbidding gambling, which would exempt the State fair for four days each year. The state fair officials were the only ones appearing in opposition and their position was that what was illegal the rest of the year could not be legalized three or four days; if gambling was right, it was right; and wrong, it was wrong, and there was no escape from the fact. The sports retired and the bill was never presented.

All the same, without question, gambling has been and still is practiced somewhere in connection with our fairs, for it is the base of all hopes in racing, though never for a moment is one to think that every man interested in racing gambles.

Now we come to the present season and the recent manly stand taken by the Commissioner of Agriculture. He has taken the oath of office which requires of him the impartial enforcement of all laws given into his hands relating to agriculture. The legislature has wisely, or unwisely, provided that if on any fair grounds there shall be gambling during the holding of the exhibition receiving aid from the state, such aid shall be forfeited. (The provision was placed there to protect the good name of the state and make our annual fairs clean and respectable, safe for all members of the family. The commissioner was not and is not responsible for that law, but he is for its impartial enforcement, and here is where the order-loving people of Maine want to get behind the commissioner. Gambling is right or wrong, for the good of the state or its injury. There's no halfway stopping place here. If right, then all laws forbidding its practice anywhere and everywhere should at the first possible moment be repealed; if wrong in principle, then no power on earth can make it right and the only step to take is to insist on just and fair enforcement treating all alike.

The most outrageous act recently was the arbitrary removal of a deputy sheriff by the sheriff of one of our counties, after he had been sent to one of our fairs to enforce the laws, in accordance with his oath of office because he arrested a man running an acknowledged gambling device after the sheriff had given them permission to run. The very fact that these men, when brought before the court, made a plea of guilty and paid their fines is proof enough of the character of the game and full justification of the arrest by the deputy. The plea so often made that these games admitted to be wrong in practice, and injurious in effect, must be allowed at our fairs as an attraction is an insult to the manhood of the state. Better by far that the few dollars they bring in to the treasury of any fair association is an actual loss, for more are driven away than attracted by such makeshifts and such duplicity.

More than that, if the state is to wink at gambling, every person devoid of principle will take license. There is too much looseness in the public morals in this respect, especially among those who aspire to be leaders of society and representatives of the upper class. Every act that tends to lower the standard of morals anywhere, gives encouragement to the lawless and this spells serious trouble later for the state and all concerned. The standard of public and private morals must be upheld and should be steadily advancing each year.

That this may be possible, the laws of the state relating to moral problems, directly or indirectly, must be enforced fairly and impartially. Nothing else will suffice. This must be the rule of action or we will all go to the scrap heap together. Civilization is held only as men and women stand squarely for honor and truth, for justice and moderation. The time for winking at an evil to please a body of men or aid in adding to their revenue has gone. The cry is make the streets safe for the coming generation. Permanent stability rests on self denial and recognition of the rights of others. You cannot do as you please. There is no liberty except under the restraining influence of law. Homes, property rights, everything held sacred would go by the board if it were not for the saving influences of law, and that is powerless save as men honestly enforce it.

The indifference of the public is the great danger point. People want good order, that evils shall be checked and civil righteousness established; but they Mills, called at Frank Grover's, October 16, and all enjoyed it much, as it was a beautiful day.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Nevins of Norway and son Percy and friend, spent Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 15 and 16, at Mrs. A. F. Moody's.

FOUR KILLED IN ACCIDENT

An accident occurred Thursday at Mat-tock's station and four women were killed. The sedan in which they were riding, was struck by a west-bound passenger train on the Mountain division of the Maine Central railroad. The only other occupant of the car is in the Maine General Hospital at Portland with a fighting chance for life. The dead are Mrs. Frank Prue, Mrs. Carl Hybert, Mrs. Edith Howard and Mrs. Bernard Small, all residents of Hiram. The injured woman is Mrs. Herbert Foss, also of Hiram.

Mrs. Prue and Mrs. Hybert were killed outright when the speeding train crashed into the machine. The other three women were rushed by special train to Portland, but Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Small died before the hospital was reached.

The five women were on their way from Hiram to attend a Pythian Sisterhood convention at Sleep Falls, and approached the crossing, which is obscured by a heavy growth of timber, without the slightest intimation of the nearness of the passenger train. Mrs. Howard, the owner of the machine, was driving. There were no eyewitnesses to the accident, but the crew of the train say the usual crossing signal was sounded.

The train struck the frail little car squarely in the middle, and carried it for 500 feet on the pilot of the engine before it dropped off, scattering its passengers along the track. Members of the crew picked up the mangled bodies, and hurried them to the nearest station, from where a special train carried the injured to Portland. All of the women were wives of farmers or business men at Hiram. Mrs. Hybert was the mother of a year old baby, and Mrs. Howard leaves a son 10 years of age.

FIRE AT DIXFIELD

Dixfield had a bad fire scare Thursday afternoon. One of the stock rooms of the N. S. Stowell & Company's spool and novelty mill was burned with a $15,000 loss.

At one time that whole section of the town was threatened. The wind was favorable and fire fighters got at the blaze early and never let up. Help was called from Rumford and the fight was won after hours of the hardest kind of work.

When the blaze was discovered, around six o'clock in the afternoon the fire had a big start. The shed was full of dry stock and it burned like paper.

The stock room is located a short distance from the rear of the main structure of the mill and was well filled with white birch novelty stock. Rumford sent a chemical and together with the local apparatus and the aid of hundreds of men the fire was held in check, although a number of dwelling houses and the mill proper were threatened. The danger of the mill catching was partially relieved by the presence of a concrete engine house separating the two buildings.

This mill is one of the oldest in this part of the country and is the oldest novelty mill in town. It is also one of the largest mills of its kind in the country. The work of the mill will be handicapped, for it will be difficult to replace the stock which was well seasoned and ready for manufacture. The shed burned was about 100 feet long.

The fire was not completely under control until long past midnight.

HIRAM BEAR STORY

Asa M. Ward and son Melville, a lad of fourteen, started out hunting for that notorious bear which has been tracked, and even seen so many times the past year. Asa, by the way, is one of our noted hunters and when he goes hunting, he usually brings back the bacon. When they reached the Chessey Camp on the B. & S. R. R., in the town of Hiram and some six miles from Bridgton Junction, they entered the woods of Hiram Lumber Company's old cutting, and after going a short distance they saw a large black bear eating something about a hundred yards away. The senior Mr. Ward, taking due care that it was not a man instead of a bear, gave her a bullet from his .38-73 Winchester, just back of the shoulder, felling the bear for only a short time and then she made a fierce charge for the hunters. Mr. Ward all this time pumping lead until his five shot magazine was exhausted and wounding the bear three times. The son, realizing that something must be done and done mighty quick, opened up with his .303 Savage, putting a bullet through her head under the eye, which only checked the ferocious animal for a moment, then with redoubled fury she charged again. The lad kept cool, lost no time and gave her another shot, striking her face between the eyes and downing her for good only a few feet away. At the beginning of Saturday's hunt, young Melville shot a partridge, then a duck, through the head and winding up the day with a bear. Had it not been for the son's prompt assistance, perhaps the father would not have been able to have told this tale.

AS HE SEES IT

Has it occurred to you that there are many people today who sincerely believe that the world is coming to an end, and that the day is near at hand? The present unsettled conditions throughout the earth are to them but visible signs of the approaching dissolution. But regardless of their beliefs, and no matter what happens, the world keeps right on moving, and it will continue to move until time ceases to be.

Many years ago the members of a religious sect were convinced that the end of the world was at hand. They even set the date when all would be wafted to heaven, or hell, or wherever else they might go. There was much excitement, many wailing eyes, and no little uneasiness, or apprehension. They dressed themselves in white, ascended high mountains or hills, raised their eyes to heaven, and awaited the grand smash.

They are still waiting—those who are left of them. And the world still moves.

In the early days woman was something of a chattel—a possession of mankind, to be disposed of as his fancy might decree. Among the rich and powerful she was an ornament, a plaything. In the humble walks of life she was a drudge, little better than a beast of burden.

If any person had told the kings and knights of old that the time would come when woman would be man's equal in all things that person would have been considered a lunatic, or a liar, or both, and a dangerous person to remain at large. His days would have been short.

Yet for centuries woman has been forging forward, fighting for and obtaining greater privileges, until today she is recognized as man's equal in many countries.

In the past doubting ones have made dire prophecies for such a day. The rise of womanhood to them meant chaos, disintegration, dissolution. But woman still progresses, and the world still moves. If man doesn't like it he can lag behind.

Some people profess to believe that the great war marked the beginning of the end of time, and that Christ was to return to earth in 1925 and rule for a thousand years. This belief is based upon mathematical computations applied to certain passages in the Bible. It may be true, or it may not, but if your heart is clean you need have no fear of meeting Christ in 1925. If Christ were to sweep the rulers of the earth into the seas and seize the reins of government himself we would not be the losers thereby. Even with Christ as the Emperor of the earth the world would continue to move—at least for a thousand years. And as the earth moves, so do we who inhabit it move with it.

A great conference is to be held in Washington. Wise men of the earth will seek to curtail armaments, eliminate war, and make the land one of peace, happiness and plenty. While they are talking the world will be moving. It may be moving toward better days, or it may be approaching horrors as yet even unheard of. But still it will move, steadily, surely, without pause or deviation from its course. God made the world for a purpose and when that purpose is accomplished the world will cease to be.

The fight for supremacy between the pen and the sword used in battle and the sword has been supplanted by the type writer.

RULES OF SUCCESS

The following statement on the "Rules of Success" which Governor Baxter sent at the request of a New England Editor will be of interest to our readers as it comes from the Chief Executive of the State of Maine, and we therefore quote it below: "To say that a man is successful implies that he has prospered in material things. That, however, is but one of the elements of success and is to be desired, but it is not its highest and noblest form. True success means the complete development of a man's nature both morally and spiritually. This can be obtained only by the development of character. The power to stand for right, to resist evil to hold fast to principle, to endure the praise as well as the scorn of fellowmen, to be considerate of others, and to defend their rights at one's own personal sacrifice, requires real character. To attain the highest measure of success cultivate character and hold to principle, for with these as foundations the world can be faced single handed."

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT October Term.

The case of Levi L. Hackett vs. Bernard Andrews was an action for an alleged breach of contract. Both resided in Canton during the years of 1919 and 1920. The suit was brought to recover $600.00 put up as a forfeiture when the lease was drawn, and a sum representing the price of dressing and labor, the whole amounted to $149.00.

The evidence disclosed the facts that the plaintiff kept a large herd of cattle on the Bennett farm, so called. Wishing to use up the manure, he leased an adjoining farm of the defendant and hauled considerable dressing there. A quarrel arose over what crops should be raised and the contract was broken. It also appeared Alonzo Rich, who owned the Bennett farm, objected to the manure being hauled away as he claimed it, and the farm, was again leased to Hackett for 1920, the remainder of the manure being used there. The jury decided in favor of Andrews. John P. Swasey for plaintiff and Albert Bellevue for defendant.

In the first and principal case, Bernard Andrews vs. Leon Richard Nalley, W. R. Anthoine of Portland, associated with Albert Bellevue of Rumford appeared for Mr. Andrews, while Mr. Bellevue appeared alone for Andrews in the two latter cases. In all three cases John P. Swasey appeared for Mr. Nalley.

All three cases cluster about a small parcel of land, called the four acre lot, which is almost, if not quite, surrounded with land owned by Mr. Andrews. This four acre lot with the lots around it are covered with forest, and have been for many years, so it is pretty hard to locate corners and lines. The lot has changed hands several times since it was first reserved in 1820. At that time its north-easterly corner was a certain number of rods from a given point on the range line, but in the lapse of time these lines had become obliterated or dim, so it was next to impossible to tell where they were. In recent years surveys have been trying to relocate the lines, and each has tried to establish a different one. The desirability of relocating these lines was due to the fact that lumbering operations have been carried on within this four acre lot and on those surrounding it, and lumber has been cut in which the ownership was uncertain, because the lines were uncertain. It was because of the uncertainty of ownership of certain lots of lumber that this suit was brought.

There are two points where it is claimed trespass has been made and some 10578 feet of lumber cut, the ownership of which was brought before the court for settlement.

The three cases were given to the jury at the noon hour Saturday and at about three o'clock they rendered a verdict for the defendant in the case of Bernard Andrews vs. Leon Richard Nalley, and for the plaintiffs in the two cases Leon R. Nalley administrator vs. Bernard Andrews, and Leon R. Nalley and Lotie M. Nalley vs. Bernard Andrews, the first for damages in the sum of $30.00 and the last in the sum of $50.00.

For the third time Frederick L. Ray of Waterford appeared to recover damages from the E. I. DuPont De Nemours & Co. This was the well known hogage case first heard at the February term when a demurrer was filed and sustained by the defendants. An amendment was made by the plaintiff and the case heard at Rumford last May. The jury disagreed.

The suit was to recover damages from overflowing water, said to be caused by the DuPont concern raising the level of Outlet Pond with a dam at the head of Kezar River. It is alleged a certain amount of standing timber was killed and a cranberry bog ruined. A general denial of raising the water level was the stand taken by the defendants.

A question of title was under discussion and eight warranty and quit claim deeds were introduced by Frank Morey, counsel for Mr. Ray. These proved numerous transfers including shore property to the defendant during the past thirty years, one-half part caused discussion and a receipt given by Samuel F. Ray for money received for a transfer of property said to include the disputed lot, was not allowed to give the plaintiff a clear title.

To off-set this, Samuel Ray of Norway filed a petition to become a plaintiff in the action and was accepted.

The scene of this law suit is at and around the shore of Outlet Pond in Lovell near the source of Kezar River. The pond is one of a string known as Kezar Lake and is the only outlet. In 1874, Eben P. Fox in company with others, bought land around the foot of the pond and later erected a wooden dam. This was to store water and control the supply running the saw mill at Lovell village some eight miles below. River drivers also used the dam in floating logs down the river when the water was low. In the course of time this small structure went to more or less decay and according to witnesses was repaired by anyone wishing to make a temporary use of it.

In 1910 a more substantial dam was erected a few rods below the first one and in 1918 the DuPont concern bought the mill privilege at Lovell with all water rights. Believing it within their rights, they erected a concrete dam in 1920 near the wooden structure. The DuPonts contend the new dam has not raised the water level a single inch, and with drawings made from surveys endeavored to prove their claim. The plaintiff on the other hand asserted measurements on his trees partially submerged, proved the water had been raised several feet. This not only flooded some fifteen acres of forest along the shore, but covered a profitable cranberry bog used many years by the inhabitants of various towns.

Evidence produced by the plaintiff corroborated his statements. This testimony showed the relation of the new level, to fixed points known by old timers before the DuPonts commenced their operations there. All agreed the pond had been raised considerably. This evidence was off-set by the defense with permanent water marks on boulders and rocks, showing the mean high and low levels for many years past. These marks were compared with the survey of conditions in 1920 and according to the defense, the difference was not apparent. Proving as they asserted, the new dam had in no wise raised the pond above normal.

Norway Grange

The grange fair was a success in every way. Every feature was well patronized and $300 realized to turn into the treasury.

Vocal solo (encore) Carolyn Smith
Reading Emma Swan
Question and answer (our town should be asked to speak before the grange).

It seemed to be the thought of the grange that if some of the town officers would be willing to speak and to answer some questions regarding the different lines of town business one might better understand town affairs and so be able to vote more intelligently along certain lines. The state deputy, Brother Quimby Perham of Woodstock, was present, inspected the books and gave a very interesting address. The next meeting will be Nov. 12 at 1:30.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT

This case proved long with considerable technical testimony offered by the defense. The jury retired early Wednesday forenoon. In the middle of the afternoon they returned a verdict that the pump company had raised the water level, but not sufficient to cause financial damage to the plaintiff. Hon. F. A. Morse for plaintiff, Bradley, Linnell & Jones for the defendants.

The suit of State of Maine vs. Homer W. Truman of Norway with cutting Alice B. Collins, age 12, daughter of Mrs. Mary Collins, into a building and committing rape, occupied the greater part of Wednesday. Both parties live as neighbors on Water street.

According to the state, the act was committed on June 20 about 11 o'clock in the forenoon in the Norway Water Company pumping station located on the Crockett Ridge road. The story told by Miss Collins is, she is company with Ellen Prince, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Prince, and the respondent and his son started in an automobile up the Norway Lake road. Reaching the pumping station, Homer Truman and Alice went in, while the others picked flowers by the roadside. The occasion for her going was to wash a bottle while he hunted up some home brew. According to the state story, it was while standing on a platform and holding the bottle, she was attacked. She said they were in the building nearly three-quarters of an hour. Immediately afterward, the party continued up the Harrison road, where a brother Ned Truman, made repairs on the car, all reaching home at noon or thereabouts.

The mother said she noticed peculiar nervous symptoms in her daughter several days following the alleged attack, and still later noticed a condition of her clothing which aroused her suspicions. Some four weeks after the alleged events Dr. Ivan Staples made an examination. The results seemed to confirm a confession said to have been made by the girl, and Homer Truman, early in July became respondent in a preliminary hearing in the Norway Municipal Court. Little Ellen Prince testified to the couple entering the station while she was left to care for the child near the car. She was not certain how long they were gone after the brew, but thought they were about the time Mrs. Collins related about washing the soiled clothing and the confession implicating the defendant, also to being present during the medical examination in Dr. Staples' office. The grandmother, Mrs. Mary Locke, through a French interpreter gave a version of the facts concerning her observation. Dr. Staples of the stand rendered a detailed account of the examination. He admitted finding no indication of violence, but could not say positively whether or not a criminal assault had been made. Conditions observed might have resulted from other causes.

The defense opened with a denial of the date alleged, and set June 13, or one week earlier, when the party motored to the station for the brew, thence up the Harrison road and home. This date was confirmed by Ned Truman and Spalding Abbott, a road commissioner, for whom Ned Truman acted as driver. Homer and the party paid a visit for slight repairs. These changes were made during the lunch hour, about 11:15, while the crew rested by the roadside where they had been cutting bushes.

What occurred in the station was clearly told by the defendant and a plan of the interior was used to show the location. He admitted taking the children to ride at the suggestion of his sister, Mrs. Prince. He denied Miss Collins held any bottle and was never at the top of the stairway as she claimed, but passed the bottle up nearby. He also denied the statements of his grasping her hands before the alleged assault and emphatically denied having any improper relations with her at any time. Defendant said they were there not over eight minutes, possibly less.

The discrepancy in dates was a point made strong by the defense. According to facts, Alice and Ellen were having their hair made ready on June 20 for a piano recital to be given the following evening, and were not out in any automobile, the machine was not used on that day. Both appeared on the program on the evening of June 21. These facts were corroborated by Mrs. Prince, Margaret Pitt, and Mrs. Homer Truman. A printed program of the entertainment was submitted by the defense. Both girls admitted playing the piano duet as scheduled. Another fact to disprove the date alleged by the state was that Ned Truman went to Camp Devens on the morning of June 20, although both girls testified repaired the car when they went on that ride.

The platform on which it was alleged the assault was committed was shown to be a small affair in a well lighted room, with two entrances near and windows on two sides. On the platform was the receptacle holding the brew, several bricks and some bedding. As a matter of fact, all the space was taken and the defendant had little standing room while filling the bottle. This condition made acts as described by the plaintiff physically impossible.

The pleas by County Attorney Harry M. Shaw, and Dana S. Williams, counsel for the defendant, were completed late Wednesday afternoon. Judge Dunn gave his charge Thursday morning. Justice Dunn reviewed the circumstances carefully and cited the law. His charge Thursday morning. Jury retired about 10:30 A. M., and at 1:10 P. M., had reached no decision. Lunch was served during the recess granted at this time.

SUNDAY AUTO TRAVEL

If you are going on an automobile trip and want to avoid all possible traffic you should go on Tuesday or Wednesday. Such is the conclusion reached from a study of a traffic census taken recently by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture, on one of the most traveled roads in the United States. If you want to go at an hour when there will be the least traffic start between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning.

Traffic increases in amount steadily from Wednesday to Saturday, the census shows, and then jumps into big volume on Sunday. The volume on Sunday is about twice that on Tuesday or Wednesday. On Monday there is a decided drop from the Sunday figures and on Tuesday the lowest ebb is reached. There is less traffic on the road between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning than at any other time of day. From 3 o'clock to 5 o'clock there is a slight increase; then a steady climb until 11. Between 11 o'clock and 1 there is a slight drop, and then an increase again until the peak is reached between 2 and 3. After 3 o'clock traffic drops slightly until 7 when the decrease becomes more pronounced.

Ninety per cent of the day's traffic goes on the road between 7 a. m. and 9 p. m., and 52 per cent, between 1 p. m. and 6 p. m.

Honestly, eternal triangles are becoming tiresome. If you want to be interesting and unique, devote your attention to your own husband or your own wife.

There has been no progress. The American Indian of yesterday were painted, and so does the women of today.

NOTHING DOING

The Colbrook Sentinel has added to the humor of weekly newspaper writers the following account in its current issue of troubles from which no newspaper publisher is free.

We give it as follows, without comment:

Not long ago a man came into this office and stopped his paper because he said it was always printing a lot of things about the same people and he said he was sick of it.

Now, when something goes wrong with the country the government appoints a commission to investigate and find out the matter, and the first thing a commission investigates is the man who made the holler to see if the holler was a reasonable holler.

So we appointed ourselves a commission to investigate the man's holler. We just followed the man's career ever since we knew him. The first thing that happened to that man was that he was born, but he had absolutely nothing to do with it.

However, the paper mentioned him, although his parents were entitled to the credit. When he was in his early 20's he got married.

This paper mentioned that, including the name of the bride, the preacher, etc., in fact it mentioned everything but the fee of preacher, which was not worth mentioning.

We never mentioned the fact that he never won any premiums at the county fair, because he never exhibited anything. We never mentioned his name in a list of candidates, because he never attended anything. We never mentioned his name in the list of donors, because he never donated as much as a doughnut.

We certainly have been treating this man shamefully, but we will agree to run a nice obituary when his time comes.

Seth W. Hutchins

Although Mr. Hutchins had been in failing health all summer, his last illness was short, and death was caused by a general breakdown.

Mr. Hutchins was a man well liked by all who knew him, ever thoughtful of others, always ready to help in times of sickness and sorrow.

Mr. Hutchins was born in Lovell, Me. 15, 1824, and his life here except about six years. He leaves a widow and one daughter, who in the last days of a long life, tenderly made husband and father as comfortable as human hands could.

The funeral was held at his late home Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The casket surrounded by many beautiful flowers were silent tokens of his many friends.

JACK FROST ISN'T QUITE SO BAD
AS HE IS PAINTED

Jack Frost is an embarrassing visitor if he comes too early or stays too late, but in the main he's a beneficent old duffer, and not the enemy of plant life that he is supposed to be, according to an article in the Journal of Agricultural Research, written by F. V. Coville, a botanist of the United States Department of agriculture. The article records a series of experiments with healthy blueberry plants, and shows the relation of freezing winter temperatures to plant growth in the spring. One fact stands clear in the result—the dormant condition of the plant in winter is not the result of freezing; on the other hand, cold stimulates the revival of life in the plant when spring comes again, it is said.

Such an explanation of the effect of cold is new to the everyday reader, who is used to looking upon winter air as detrimental to plant life, forcing the shrub into a dormant state scarcely better than death. But healthy, husky blueberry bushes which Mr. Coville sheltered in his greenhouse "went to sleep" just the same, despite the fact that the air was kept at a growing temperature.

The shrubs, he admits, didn't go to bed so early as they did when Jack Frost used to hurry them off, but go to sleep they did. Their leaves dropped off, and in the warm greenhouse the plants went in to a dormant condition exactly like that of others outside in the cold and snow. Moreover, they were late in waking when spring came. Some, indeed, slept through the whole year. The inference is that the plant's period of dormancy is a seasonal matter not induced by the cold, but that the early and luxuriant growth in the spring can not occur unless the plant has been through a period of chill temperature.

In another experiment the investigator set a blueberry bush close to the greenhouse wall and passed a branch through into the warm interior. The warm branch and the cold ones became dormant as usual, but when spring days came the part of the plant that was under shelter failed to revive. The part that had been exposed to the weather emerged from its dormant state and made quick and healthy growth.

Mr. Coville believes that the cold weakens the plant cells, and by destruction in part turns the starch to sugar, thus assuring new growth. This, he asserts, can not take place if the plants are protected from the frost and cellular injury. Whatever the cause, the results seem to be assured, and the horticulturist has a new and valuable aspect of the meaning of cold weather.

COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE

Five human heads must be held as trophies by the man of Formosa who would woo and win a wife.

A Laplander who marries a girl against the will of her parents is deemed guilty of a serious crime, and the punishment for it is very severe.

On the day after the marriage ceremony the bridegroom of West Africa shows his appreciation of his wife by powdering her head with fine clay.

In Turkestan every wedding engagement begins with the payment of a substantial consideration to the girl's parents. If the girl kills her lover the engagement gift has to be returned unless the parents have another daughter to act as substitute.

Women of means in Assam are permitted to choose a temporary husband, and, when tired of him, pay him off and take another.

In Sweden it is custom for a bride to fill her pockets with bread, which she hands to everyone she meets on her way to church. Every piece she disposes of is supposed to avert a misfortune.

In parts of the Tyrol the bride's mother gives her daughter what is known as the "tearkerchief," worn in fine linen, with which she is supposed to dry her eyes at the ceremony. Afterward she puts this away, and it is not used again until it is laid over her face when she is dead.

For a period of seven years after the wedding an ancient Armenian custom prohibits the bride from speaking to any man except her husband.

The bride in northern Mongolia is not contracted to her husband-to-be until after the woman's parents have agreed upon the number of dogs they will pay as her dowry.

Almost the last act of the Maianan girl, before her marriage, is to have her teeth filed short and pointed.

WHERE ARE OUR BRAINS?

Recently the government contracted with England to build a giant dirigible for our navy. It collapsed on its trial trip and nearly fifty American and English airman were killed. Life paid the penalty of faulty construction.

We can understand the why and the wherefores of faulty construction, but we can not understand why we should have a dirigible built in England at an expense of two million dollars when it could just as well be made here at home.

This sort of thing seems especially aggravating when we think of the five or six millions of men out of employment in this country. It may be true that none of these men could build dirigibles, but the money would be kept in circulation at home, and every little helps.

Are we deteriorating in constructive ability?

Must we admit that England, with the best of her manhood under the sod, is even yet able to construct dirigibles where we can not?

Where are our brains, anyway?

Grange Drama Pleased Crowd
 The three act comedy drama, "A Poor Married Man," made a great hit at the Grange fair at Paris Grange hall Thursday and Friday evenings. All parts were well taken and the show went with plenty of action and breezy comedy.

Matrimonial complications due to general misunderstandings, were the main stays supporting the story set in a college town.

Henry Woodworth portrayed "Prof. John H. Wise" who was made the "goat" by misinformed friends. A mix-up, caused by a square jawed mother-in-law being mistaken for his wife, disorganized the household and resulted in the wife and her mother leaving on short notice. His second matrimonial venture with a young freshman was a fortunate affair and had a happy ending.

"Mrs. Iona Ford" otherwise "Clark and Smith" was played by Mrs. Sadie Silver. She was a mother-in-law in the case, and general manager of her daughter's matrimonial venture. Believing Prof. Wise a great financial catch, she married her daughter Ruth to the college instructor expecting wealth, and a position as boss in their home. Not understanding the Professor's strange actions the "frame-up" with Ruth and both left handily for Reno and freedom.

Lydia Swift as "Ruth" the daughter and bride for a day was a good portrayal, little for the professor as her love went to "Billy Blake". Her aversive mother, playing for wealth, forced her to accept one not congenial especially after the Professor's real financial standing was discovered. Billy coming into a fortune, was caught at last with the mother-in-law left out of the deal.

Charlie Hammond presented the character of "Billy Blake" a collegian. After suffering long, secured the girl of his choice when the Reno divorce courts out apart the knot holding the Professor and Ruth. He also discovered Mrs. Ford's long lost husband and released Dr. Graham from his unwise second marriage with the foxy Mrs. Ford-Clark-Smith.

Austin Stearns Jr., as "Dr. Matthew Graham" a country M. D. who fell into the clutches of Mrs. Ford, was good character acting. Thinking him wealthy, the woman schemer won his affections and the pair went to the home of his daughter June, the happy wife of Prof. Wise. A cool reception by her former son-in-law, and learning her husband's real life and was rich, made the Doctor a free man to the satisfaction of all.

"Ruth Graham" the college freshman, and later the second wife of Prof. Wise was acted by Berta Lovejoy. Entering college, she won the heart of the lonely Professor and a happy home was the result.

Clara Starbird made a typical college town reporter, named "Reginald W. Willard" who circulated a story in the Professor's presence and otherwise unconsciously complicated matters in the household.

Neil Lovejoy, as "Jupiter Jackson," a colored servant in an professor's home, acted by Berta Lovejoy. Entering college, she won the heart of the lonely Professor and a happy home was the result.

The Harmony Orchestra played for the drama both evenings, and for dancing Friday night. The members were piano, Helen M. Barnes and Mrs. A. B. Garcelon; violin, Alfred Cota; cornet, Allis Cota; trombone, Rex Mills.

Mr. Izah Porter, Mrs. A. N. Cairns and Mrs. Albert L. Morse staged the play.

P. H. S. 20; Livermore H. S. 7

Paris High won in a lively scrimmage at Livermore Falls Saturday afternoon. McGinley made a pretty 30 yard run and Turcotte cleaned 15 yards on his leg.

Livermore scored their only marks in the first period and Paris found nothing. During the three following sessions Paris found a touch-down in each and made two goals. The summary:

Paris: H. Aldrich, le. W. Whynot, Burzette, le. H. Lewis, J. J. Simpson, c. G. Boyle, McPhee, rg. R. Marsh, Card, lb. R. Furbush, Aldrich, re. R. Furbush, J. J. Simpson, lb. R. Furbush, Hubbard, rlb. R. Furbush, Buckett, b. R. Furbush, Touchdowns, Ramsdell, McGinley, Kins, Hubbard. Goals from touchdowns, McGinley, Hubbard, Whitcomb.

New Block Under Construction
 A crew of about eight men have been kept at work under the direction of W. A. Jack, foreman, and T. F. McCreary & Co. of Lewiston, who are building a block for the Paris Building Association. What was left of the brick underpinning of the Odd Fellow's Block has been demolished. The concrete floor of the old basement has been broken up and carted off, and a large portion of the stone basement walls has been taken down and the stones broken up to be used in the concrete of the new foundation. Further excavation for a deeper cellar is going on.

The old fireproof vault of the town, the doors of which were removed some time ago has been demolished with sledge, drill and explosives.

It is understood that the work of building will be pushed rapidly; and that a considerable showing on the new building will be made in the next few weeks.

The drama, "The Poor Married Man," given by the Paris Grange Thursday and Friday evenings will be repeated at Bolster's Mills and West Paris in the near future.

Extensive repairs have been made on the dam at the J. A. Kenney & Son mill on Stony brook.

The New Harmony Orchestra organized several weeks ago has engaged the Hall at Bethel for a Halloween ball, October 29th. This dance team comprises Alfred Cota, violin; Allis Cota, cornet; Helen Barnes, piano and Rex Mills, the trombonist.

Mrs. Lottie Grant of South Freeport spent several days with her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. S. Chandler on Pine street.

County Agent Lovejoy, C. F. Tripp, P. M. Wyman and L. E. McIntire were appointed a committee to draw up the county program work for 1922.

The date for the Harvest Supper at Deering Memorial Church has been set for Thursday, Nov. 3.

MOVING PICTURE EVILS

By Charles L. Pollard

(Note: The following paper and the quick following action of the recent meeting of the Oxford County Congregational Association at South Paris.—Scribe.)

Of all the marvellous inventions and accomplishments of the past few decades, the photograph is easily foremost in its influence upon the mind and emotions of the masses. As a writer in a recent issue of Current Opinion has phrased it, "No fiction, no poetry, no painting, no sculpture, no pulp and no drama have ever reached so unaccountable an audience, in a mood so expectant, so credulous, so impressionable."

It follows as a natural corollary, that the moving picture drama has the most tremendous potentialities for good or evil or all influences affecting our civilization. There is evidence that among these people, qualified to judge, the output of our leading producers, the sentiment is almost unanimous that these potentialities are now being exerted on the wrong side of the scale. In fact there are many people who can see in the photograph nothing but a serious menace to our standards of ethics and morality. It cannot enroll itself among the latter class because I believe that viewed purely as an invention, the moving picture has tremendous educational possibilities. Everyone will agree that the portrayal of current events, exemplified in the Pathé news pictures, the Paramount Weekly, affords an excellent method of bringing interesting scenes and action vividly before the public.

Everyone knows that the actual sight of an object creates a more lasting impression than the most accurate verbal description. Whether the best possible selection of current events is made in these films is a question that may be open to discussion, but is not within the scope of my present topic. As for the photograph, it affords pleasure to thousands of people who have little or no opportunity of seeing plays produced by legitimate stage. The drama has been recognized for ages as one of the highest forms of literary art, and good acting of a good play is intellectually satisfying to a person of intelligence and discrimination.

The photograph has many of the advantages of the stage and is better adapted to the needs of the masses, for it can be given simultaneously in many cities. But just as the legitimate stage may be debased by inferior actors or dramatists, so the photograph may be presented in an instrument of evil by presenting distorted and sensational pictures of life. It then becomes a menace to the moral standards of an innocent diversion.

People with subnormal minds, those in a transition stage, like most of our immigrants, and children are the types most deeply affected by moving pictures. The educated or sophisticated man passes over impossible and vicious scenes or situation in a spirit of disgust, amusement or indifference. He gains no lasting impression to affect his character.

The pianist mind of a child, constantly sensitized like a photographic plate, to receive and record new mental concepts, may be deeply affected by a single scene or a single event, however obvious or trivial it may seem to the adult. The outward surroundings, too, are all conducive to strengthening the effect upon impressionable minds. You sit in a darkened room, with nothing to distract your attention from the picture, except the monotonous strains of a piano or an orchestra playing popular music. The frequent repetition of these airs, the closeness of the hall, and the eye strain of prolonged gazing at a flicker in a dimly lit room, in which a state of partial auto-hypnosis, in which, as every one knows, subconscious impressions are often vividly recorded. It is this fact which is responsible for many crimes directly traceable to the movies.

Take, for example, the case of a paranoiac, made up of strange appearances perfectly normal, but in whose mind a train of thought or association of ideas is likely to cause an outbreak of homicidal mania. He sees a film in which someone resembling a person he dislikes is murdered. The suggestion of killing is superinduced in his mind, and is rapidly associated with the thought of his fancied enemy. With the cunning and tenacity of the insane he clings to this idea until a favorable opportunity occurs.

I have no doubt that a large number of unsplendid crimes by insane persons might be traced back to some suggestive photograph.

In the case of the immigrant, the harm done is of another sort. He is ignorant of anything but the street life of his native land. He sees many plays in which the hero is first presented amid squalid surroundings, often greatly exaggerated. The hero commits a crime, repents of it, and is soon exonerated on the ground that he "never had a mother" or "was forced to do it," and about the fifth reel attains a fortune, being exhibited in a palace with sumptuous furniture and a retinue of servants. Not only does the immigrant thus gain ideas of American life and customs wholly at variance with the truth, but if he has been led astray by the false picture, he is likely to be a victim of the same.

The writer whom I quoted above says "I am amazed by the marble halls, the spacious lawns, the sweeping drives, the castellated porticoes, the gorgeous saloons and noble stairways which seem to be essential to true love in Movie Land."

But it is in relation to children that the moving picture evil looms up most seriously. Howard Sheldon, a general secretary for the Big Brother movement, brings evidence, in an article recently published in the Bookman, that the serious dealing with thefts, hold-ups and gun play are responsible for many reformatory commitments. "He gives an account of conversations with some of the boys in which they frankly admit that they gained from the movies ideas for the crimes they committed. Apparently the fact that the picture usually showed the villain captured and punished made little impression; the supremely exciting moment was when the shot was fired or the pocketbook abstracted. The truth is that the modern American child has an abnormal craving for excitement; the picture shows him how to get it."

Advertising agents pander to this morbid interest by displaying posters with sensational scenes and descriptions. Last Saturday night in our town, for example, there was a poster with the legend "Hearts up" showing a woman leaping a pistol at the head of a cow-boy. As if cheap and misleading melodramas were not sufficient bad food for the childish mind, the producers of scene, rios go a step farther and dose it with pictures based on the so-called sex motive. It has actually become difficult to find a show in which the feature film does not depict a story either of man's lust or woman's frailty; and it is often presented with details which even a Zola or a Balzac would refrain from describing. It is fatuous to say that much of this sort of stuff passes over the heads of children who see the play. Even our young boys and girls are often far more sophisticated than we imagine, and one shudders to think of the probable effect of salacious plays upon adolescence.

It is not my province to discuss here the means by which the moving picture evil may be combated; but I may perhaps point out in conclusion the course such a reform should take. Let the play have a clean plot with plenty of action reproduced faithfully from the real life with which we are familiar. It should avoid unnatural situations and unrelated episodes, suggest in its "plot" or "punch." If the play involves a romance, it should also contain a light comedy vein by way of contrast; but above all it should be clean and without suggestiveness. Let the sex play, as such, be altogether abolished.

I am well aware that producers defend their present output on the ground that the public demand sensational films. That is probably true, as it is in line with the American tendency. Nevertheless I am convinced that if the more intelligent people could institute a movement for better plays and if parents would set the example by keeping their children at home until the improvement was accomplished, the managers would be glad to co-operate.

Following is a scheme whereby a moving picture might be "judged":
 1. What artistic value does the production exhibit? Is the acting in the main coarse or refined? Is it sexually suggestive?

2. Is vice or crime evident? How much? Is it made repulsive or alluring? Is it treated with indifference or humor?

3. What virtues are stressed? To what extent? Do they make an appeal in their own behalf and so challenge the spectator?

4. If religion is treated, either abstractly or concretely, does the production make light of it or portray it seriously?

5. Are the educational features sufficient in quantity and quality to make the production worth its price in money and time? How much is the entertainment as such worth? Generally, is it uplifting? Debasing? Inane?

6. What possible direction in morals would the production give to children and youth?

MID-SUMMER DAYS IN CASCO BAY

"On the shores of Casco Bay, Where the little White Caps play, And the sun sinks down in glory, O'er the mountains far away."

The study of characteristics, is one of the most pleasurable of amusements. One finds odd characters everywhere, and they are not confined to the backwoods, by any manner of means. They are seen and met with on the sea coast, amid its "flotsam and jetsam", and in cities and villages. It might be supposed that some of the oddities would get rubbed off in the hustle and bustle of city life, but this is not the fact. Such avoid crowds and sink off into holes, where they can hang on to their peculiarities, but occasionally drift out into the quiet place where there is plenty of sea room so to speak.

I saw an odd looking specimen of humanity on the wharf in the city one day while waiting for the boat to the island. He had a wild look in his eyes, was gaunt and tall, with sandy hair and complexion. He looked as if he hadn't eaten a good square meal for many a day. I was so much reminded of a certain character I had seen around Norway that I took more particular notice of him than I otherwise should have done. This one was rather better barbered, though his clothes were equally as shabby. His appearance on the whole was unwholesome and the atmosphere about him unsavory. I judged that a hot bath and a good scrubbing would do a great benefit to the people he went among, as well as himself. I heard him in a talk with another man, denouncing the "high-brows," "Wall street", and "bloated trust companies and corporations", that he said "were absorbing the wealth of the country and reducing it to slavery". Of course he was a communist.

That same day I had met a totally different character up in the city. And he was not odd by any manner of means but still a character. Mr. George D. Bishop used to call him, "Hercules Greeley", and I saluted him as such. He informed me that he was then a citizen of Portland, he had sold out his business up country at a fancy figure and was intending to start a paper in the city, and that it would be a lively sheet and "sit up the money".

"When next John Gilpin rides a race, May I be there to see."

There was one thing I noticed this summer with much surprise. The women's skirts were getting alarmingly near the knees. It hadn't occurred to me before. Five years ago, the ladies around home had begun to wear short dresses. This was a commendable fashion, for it saved the dust and back of the skirt from getting into the clothes. That year I went as far West as Chicago, and it was noticeable that the farther one got in that direction the shorter the skirts became. They were shorter in Boston than in Portland, shorter in Baltimore than in Boston, and shorter in Chicago than in Baltimore. Several years since have passed without attracting much attention. One case on the island and one here in Norway this year where the "extreme of the fashion" was followed was shocking to say the least. Each woman, (I mean call either a lady) was well proportioned to say the least. The dress was cut low in the neck, and for length scarcely reached below the knees. I never heard the morality of either woman questioned but their taste and idea of propriety were sadly at fault. Why anyone should want to dress in such a fashion as to cause coarse remarks from the prudent is past comprehension. The trouble I suppose is in trying to keep up with the fashions, without having due regard to modesty. A vision rises before me of a lady friend of mine on the Necktie who keeps in touch with the fashions through the year. She has taste, is modest, has a brilliant mind and, possess all the graces of young womanhood. Being recently in the village where she lived, I called to see her and her widowed mother, to whom the daughter is devoting her life, and to thank them for the tokens of sympathy I had received from them while in the hospital. Both were "tastefully, modestly and properly attired. It would be unthinkable for two ladies to dress in the unbecoming and objectionable way of the two women referred to.

Men long in particular lines of business acquire certain characteristics. This is noticeable among the summer residents of Great Diamond Island. The courtesy and alertness of Joseph H. Day for instance proclaim him the successful business man that he is. He worked his way up from a clerk in a hardware store to one of the head men in Emory, Waterhouse Co.—doing business on Middle street.

The next regular meeting will be on Saturday evening, Nov. 5th, with a regular grange supper at 7 p. m. The usual grange meeting will follow supper, after which there will be a grange social. The committee to be appointed by Worthy Lecturer C. S. Hamlin. The lady officers will oversee supper arrangements and everyone willing to make themselves useful will assist.

SOUTH WATERFORD

Bear Mt. Grange

Bear Mt. Grange, No. 62 met in regular session Saturday evening with Worthy Master E. K. Kilgore in the chair. After the business routine an open meeting was declared and the program in charge of Clyde Millett was taken up.

The entertainment consisted of selections on the phonograph, songs by the choir; vocal solos by Ethel Monroe and Doris Brown; readings by June Pike and Edna Thomas. The question for discussion, "Which is of the most benefit, an automobile or electric lights?" Opened by J. O. Decker and followed by several brothers and sisters. Excellent suggestions for the good of the Order were given by Harold Pike, Master of Oxford Pomona.

The next regular meeting will be on Saturday evening, Nov. 5th, with a regular grange supper at 7 p. m. The usual grange meeting will follow supper, after which there will be a grange social. The committee to be appointed by Worthy Lecturer C. S. Hamlin. The lady officers will oversee supper arrangements and everyone willing to make themselves useful will assist.

What is the Cause?

Arthur Hubbard of Norway propounds these posers and asked us to explain, why? We can't do it but can put it in the paper and perhaps some of our readers can inform him.

Grain is back to its pre-war level, if not below.

Cows are cheap if you want to go into the milk business.

We have on hand, in America today, the largest reserve of milk and milk products in our history.

Why, then, is milk so high? Why does not its retail price respond to the obvious changes in the industry? Do the producers exact too much? Do the retailers exact too much? Do the cart drivers charge too much? Are the taxes on the business too high? What is the matter?

Here is a commodity which by all the recognized laws of trade, ought to be cheap once more. It is not. Where does the trouble lie? Boston Herald.

Recitations from Mrs. Gertrude Libby and Doris Kerr, and two fine readings by Mrs. Jennie Walker of Walker Camp with vocal selections by Dorothy Goodwin, Doris and Eda Kerr were enjoyed. A social hour with games and a general good time closed a most enjoyable evening. The Neighbors hold their meetings the third Wednesday in each month and the prospects are good for a busy winter. Many good times are planned.

SUGGESTIVE READING

You will hear it said that such and such a magazine is a suggestive story, meaning that they present corrupting ideas in an attractive dress. But there is a suggestiveness also of quite a different sort—the suggestiveness that quickens the reader's sense of duty, stimulates ambition, gives courage to face adversity, fortifies against yielding easily to temptation. It is this better kind of suggestiveness that you will find on almost every page of The Youth's Companion. Which of these two kinds of suggestiveness would you wish to have exert an influence in your life?

Remarkable Experience of P. G. Clark

Builds Up Weight Quickly

"I was all run down," writes P. G. Clark. "I had to quit work I was so weak. Now I gained 25 pounds in 30 days."

"Tomline has put 10 pounds on me in 14 days," states Charles Brackett. "It has made me sleep well, enjoy what I ate and enabled me to work with interest and pleasure."

If you would like to put on a few pounds of good solid flesh, we will send you free a 60c box of Tomline to prove what it will do for you.

TAXATION AND HIGH COST OF LIVING

(Communication)

"What is retarding building operations today? * * * Union labor insists on war-time wages with the result, that the only people who build in these times of high cost of labor, are those who are actually driven at the point of necessity to do so. If the men engaged in the building trades, the carpenters, the brick layers, the masons, and the plasterers, would come down to reasonable and fair wages, (and the dealers in materials also), we would see the greatest building boom that this even been experienced in this country. * * * The fact is, however, that brick layers, masons, painters, and other artisans are asking from $1 to $1.50 an hour."

The farmer has had to submit to lower figures. He has been obliged to sell his products at a sacrifice, compared with war prices, of more than 100 per cent. Farm labor has gone down to $3 or $4 a day, but how is it with reference to the operatives on our railroads. They have not come down and now threaten to strike because they are asked to submit to what I think is a very reasonable reduction. * * * I am getting tired of these strike threats. * * * It is time we taught these men the lesson that they are not bigger than the United States."—Senator Nelson of Minnesota.

Washington, Oct. 19, based on statistics for 23 cities, the cost of living in the United States decreased 1.7 per cent. from last May to September and 18.1 per cent. from June, 1920, to September, according to figures announced today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The decrease from May to September ranged from 0.1 per cent. for Portland, Me., to 3.8 per cent. for Jacksonville, Fla., with New York showing a decrease of 1.1 per cent.; Boston 0.9 per cent.; Chicago 2.8 per cent.; Denver, 0.6 per cent.; Houston, 2.06 per cent.; Memphis 1.3 per cent.; 2 o'clock P. M., interment at Mt. Will cemetery, North Bethel.

The figures showed the cost of living in the country in September to be 77.3 per cent. higher than the average for the year 1913. The increases were itemized as follows: food 53.1 per cent.; clothing 92.1 per cent.; housing 60 per cent.; fuel and light 80.7 per cent.; furniture 124.7 per cent.; and miscellaneous 107.3 per cent.; Nantucket, Mass., tax rate this year is $19.00, or $1.00.

"The Peters administration has been a distinct accomplishment for the city. If you compare the tax rate of Boston with that of Revere and Methuen and other cities and towns in the commonwealth, you will see that it has meant something to the tax-paying interests of the community—something through the public in the cost of living—to have a man of the integrity and character of Andrew J. Peters at the helm."—Boston paper.

The Interstate Commerce Commission of the Government has ordered a reduction of freight rates on grain products and hay, west of the Mississippi. Why not east of that river?

The Western farmer is confronted with the prospect of $1.00 wheat. A year ago he was asking $3, a bushel. Wheat, flour, corn and meal are dropping down. Sugar at wholesale is a little over five cents a pound. Joseph P. Grady, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, says that one of the causes for this condition is that "legislation is virtually putting the grain speculators out of business."

Of Rheumatism

Sometimes They Are Unbearable.

There are weather conditions that make rheumatism worse. They are not the same in the cases of all persons. Some rheumatics suffer more in dry, warm weather than in moist, cold weather, but all suffer more or less all the time.

The cause of rheumatism is an excess of uric acid in the blood, affecting the muscles and joints, causing aches and pains. Hence the blood must have attention for permanent results in the treatment of this disease.
